

Having surveyed 215 people, I have come to certain conclusions on the understanding of COVID-19 and how people view the future.

An Examination of COVID-19

Ananya Jammi

Coronavirus has disrupted life as we knew it. To restart life, everybody must understand what we are up against and how to return to their routine safely.

I have an incredibly positive outlook, and I hypothesize that people mostly feel the same way, and understand the situation and its dos and don'ts.

Survey Findings

To test my hypothesis, I surveyed 215 people. Close to 100% of the respondents are fully aware of the disease, its symptoms, and the precautionary measures required.

It is encouraging to note that up to 68% of the respondents are either not worried or only mildly worried about the pandemic. This is not to say that we should let our guard down, but it suggests that most of the respondents are hopeful of a brighter tomorrow.

Admittedly, 68% have indicated that they feel a degree of anxiety. With encouragement from the authorities and the right preventive measures in place, I believe this number would see a downward trend.

Also, when it comes to challenges, it is vital to note that there appears to be a close correlation between self-isolation (54%) and anxiety (62%). This raises the question of whether Cabin Fever is also a contributing factor.

Appendix – Survey Results

What is your age?

Answered: 213 Skipped: 2

Gender?

Answered: 211 Skipped: 4

How confident are you in your understanding of coronavirus, its symptoms and how it spreads?

Answered: 213 Skipped: 2

What do you think are the common symptoms of COVID-19?

Answered: 214 Skipped: 1

Per your understanding, COVID-19 is caused by

Answered: 212 Skipped: 3

According to you, what are the common precautionary measures to be taken to protect yourself?

Answered: 214 Skipped: 1

What are the TOP THREE biggest challenges you are currently facing?

Answered: 209 Skipped: 6

How worried are you about the impact of coronavirus on you personally?

Answered: 214 Skipped: 1

